Pekak! Indonesian Noise 1995-2015. 20 Years Of Experimental Music From Indonesia

Around 123 Noise-Experimental projects from Indonesia between 1995-2015 archived inside this compilation, there's a few projects that still active until now like Bergegas Mati, Coffee Faith, Individual Distortion, To-Die, Soon Crazy, etc. Following Syrphe Rec says,

"You will notice that the quality of some tracks is not the best ever, you have to realise that this archive is made of recording coming from various sources (from lives, from video tapes, from old cassettes, from MP3s) and the masters had sometimes a poor quality. The best has been done to improve what was possible to restore. For various reasons, it has been decided that the compilation could be downloaded for free but if you can, please, consider to make a small donation. Restoring many of the recordings has taken a lot of time and dedication, Indra's research about Indonesian noise and experimental music has been a great investment too and this during a few years, pressing the DVD and printing the covers has cost money as well and the biggest part of the benefits will be use to support noise festivals in Java, Bali and Kalimantan, such as Jogja Noise Bombing, Chaos Non Musica, Samarinda Noise Fest."

INDONOISIA: Indonesian Noise & Experimental Sounds

This compilation is released by UK massive noise rec-label Harsh Noise Movement (HNM), with great Indonesian discography noise-exp project on their list, but unfortunately the page and the record label is shutdown for now.

"HNM Records is proud to present INDONOISIA: Indonesian Noise & Experimental Sounds, a compilation album highlighting the exciting and ever growing underground experimental noise scene in Indonesia. For many years the noise and experimental music scene of Indonesia has been steadily growing and expanding its impact on the rest of the world. Many talented and diverse artists have created so many wondrous sounds that challenge the mind and eardrums. This album is just a small taste of what the underground music scene of Indonesia has to offer."

We don't know when it started and we certainly don't know when it ends. That was a statement I'm trying to put out through Jogja Noise Bombing's first ever zine, published maybe 10 years ago. That piece of mind was born from my reflection on a noise set: where the players don't actually know which parts are the actual beginning of the set, also how and when it will end. This similar feeling rises when we, as a scene, try to dig up any kind of information that we hope could explain when or when this certain aural aesthetic was born the first time. And, of course, we are not certain that the information which we try to archive has captured the most recent form of mentioned aural aesthetics.

And now, you're holding on to one initiative that tries to also capture movements related to that certain aesthetics... the noise aesthetics. Once more, we don't know when it started and we certainly don't know when it ends. But at least, with this Zine, GerpFast is able to direct us to some stops (albums, reading materials, motion pictures, movements, etc.) where we can feel certain about the where, when, and how these things took shape in Indonesia. Without further ado, breathe it in...

MELAWAN KEBISINGAN KOTA

Surabaya (East Java), like other big cities, is a city with a high level of population density and noise activity. Every second, hour, or day, our ears are forced to listen to noisy sounds coming from the surrounding environment. The noisy sounds of traffic jams, and the roar of factories, stations, terminals, and airports, are crowded every day without us being able to resist.

Starting from a situation like that, the alternative art practitioners in Surabaya were moved to provide a satire, to fight/against the noise. Through a sound installation art action entitled, "Melawan Kebisingan Kota". If the graffiti on walls is a form of visual vandalism, then this is the SOUND VANDALISM.

"The street is our stage, audience are everywhere!"

TAREKAT SUARA

It has never been formally formalized as a community that stands side by side with the local authorities. In October 2022, a noise bombing event entitled MEU/RIYOH (Invasion of Public Space) held in the City Park alongside a children's playground was the first activity carried out by TAREKAT SUARA, as well as a declaration of the birth of this experimental collective.

Based in Aceh Province, Indonesia, TAREKAT SUARA was initiated by one of the Experimental Music activists with the stage name DAURBUNYI. This collective is present to bring a new discourse to the development of art in Aceh by presenting an alternative space for exploring new styles of art.

In meaning, TAREKAT SUARA is taken from two syllables, namely TAREKAT which means the path or way of achieving something, and SUARA which means something that can be heard. Now, the meaning of sound has widened to include not only sounds but things that can convey the message or meaning implied in it.

This community is open to explorative artists. Applying the principles of collective work and independence as popularized by the punk and noise scenes in the implementation of its work patterns. TAREKAT SUARA accommodates experimental artists in various activities such as workshops and workshops, organizing performances and exhibitions, discussions, and film screenings by friends who are involved or not in TAREKAT SUARA. It also does not limit itself to sound art alone but extends to various other art disciplines.

It has never been formally formalized as a community that stands side by side with the local authorities. In October 2022, a noise bombing event entitled MEU/RIYOH (Invasion of Public Space) held in the City Park alongside a children's playground was the first activity carried out by TAREKAT SUARA, as well as a declaration of the birth of this experimental collective.

Based in Aceh Province, Indonesia, TAREKAT SUARA was initiated by one of the Experimental Music activists with the stage name DAURBUNYI. This collective is present to bring a new discourse to the development of art in Aceh by presenting an alternative space for exploring new styles of art.

In meaning, TAREKAT SUARA is taken from two syllables, namely TAREKAT which means the path or way of achieving something, and SUARA which means something that can be heard. Now, the meaning of sound has widened to include not only sounds but things that can convey the message or meaning implied in it.

This community is open to explorative artists. Applying the principles of collective work and independence as popularized by the punk and noise scenes in the implementation of its work patterns. TAREKAT SUARA accommodates experimental artists in various activities such as workshops and workshops, organizing performances and exhibitions, discussions, and film screenings by friends who are involved or not in TAREKAT SUARA. It also does not limit itself to sound art alone but extends to various other art disciplines.

BRRRZ.STUDIO

BRRRZ.STUDIO, a pioneering collective based in Yogyakarta, Indonesia, is dedicated to archiving and celebrating the avant-garde realms of ELECTRONIC EXPERIMENTAL and NOISE performances. Embracing the unconventional, the collective captures the essence of these sonic adventures through live recordings and insightful artist interviews. In the vibrant cultural tapestry of Yogyakarta, BRRRZ.STUDIO thrives as a hub for artistic exploration, pushing the boundaries of sonic innovation.

Going beyond mere documentation, BRRRZ.STUDIO serves as a cultural curator, connecting audiences with the minds behind the beats. The collective's commitment to authenticity and its geographical roots in Indonesia create a melting pot of sonic influences, fostering collaboration and exchange. In a world where electronic music constantly evolves, BRRRZ.STUDIO stands as a lighthouse, guiding enthusiasts through experimental soundscapes. It is more than a collective; it is a sonic journey and a cultural bridge connecting artists and audiences in the exploration of boundless possibilities within electronic experimental and noise performances.

RUANG GULMA COLLECTIVE

Consciousness is not a miracle or revelations that instantly descend from the heavens and manifest within humans. Consciousness arises from the interconnectedness of humans with the universe, the environment, and even other humans, although consciousness still has limited space. However, not all humans can cultivate consciousness within themselves without receiving triggers from outside. Assembling the spark of consciousness on one's own is an effort to ensure that human sanity is maintained in living life, awakening (and even arming) one's imagination. Art is one of the tools, the catalyst of the weapon to build consciousness. However, what is far more important than 'having a weapon' is 'how to use the weapon.' Thus, the weapon in the form of images that arise from awareness will be more effective and beneficial for other humans. That spirit resides in the ruang gulma as a collective.

Ruang Gulma Collective is an ecosystem of art and life built in late 2014, conceived and managed independently as a place for Music, Visual Arts, Literature, and Community organisms. Ruang Gulma is a chosen space to open up (continuously) possibilities and awareness for anyone who wants to cultivate their creative work independently, based on collectivism, and a political stance that is in favor of friendship (read: network).

YES NO KLUB

Established in 2010 as a monthly experimental whatever event at Jogja National Museum in Yogyakarta, Indonesia by Wok the Rock (Yes No Wave, Mes 56) & Timothy O'Donoghue (Oxen Free, Bus), Yes No Klub (YNK) now consists of a core group of contributors responsible for operations as required.

YES ≠ NO KLUB

YNK is an official host organisation for AsiaLink (Australia) in Indonesia and co-managed a project with the German cultural centre Goethe-Institute, Germany's CTM Festival for Adventurous Music and Art, Singapore's Playfreely / Blackkaji and Manila's WSK Festival entitled Nusasonic. Through the Nusasonic project YNK organised a five day, multiple venue festival in Yogyakarta with participants from throughout Southeast Asia and Europe in 2018, a two month Nusasonic residency for Nadah El Shazly (Cairo) and Jessica Ekomané (Berlin) in 2019 and participated in Nusasonic events throughout Southeast Asia and Europe.

In 2020 YNK furthered its international network through a collaboration with HuruHara for the inclusion of four Indonesian artists in the AsiaTopa Festival in Melbourne, Australia.

During Covid YNK shifted its focus to the curation of content for external events, most notably ArtJog, the facilitation of a stage at Pestapora with artists from throughout Indonesia, Malaysia, Thailand and the Philippines and virtual participation in MUTEK Montréal.

2023 sees YNK return to regular programming with monthly electronic event Yes No Disko, continued curation for both ArtJog and Pestapora and a number of Yes No Klub gigs.

BANYUNOISE

BANYUNOISE Banyumas experimental club is a collective that grew in Purwokerto (Central Java) in the field of sound or visual experimentation and all other linear arts. Becomes a space or laboratory for individuals or other art activists to express ideas and ideas as well as discourse that will be offered to be worked on in order to become a more aesthetically pleasing work. Through its noise "noise" Banyunoise succeeded in creating a musical phenomenon that attracted attention, not only from the people of Purwokerto, but through its actions it was able to steal the attention of other music activists outside Purwokerto to enjoy and appreciate it.

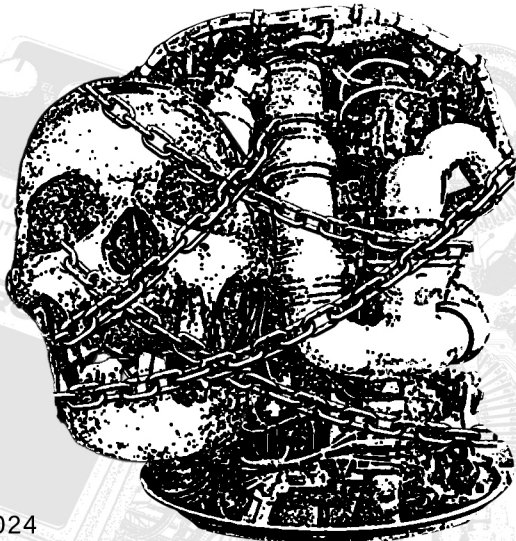

This phenomenon occurs not without reason. Because Banyunoise is here to offer a new culture in Purwokerto for those who miss the progressiveness of "avant garde" music through its underground movement through unlimited improvisation, self-taught learning, and understanding the technicalities of finding each tool on its own to create a sound source that will later be processed into such a way. appearance. Regarding Banyunoise's own activities, it is not just about performances, but the crew members carry out other activities, including workshops, discussions and all other activities.
